In this recent Lower Gwynedd first-floor remodel, the Custom Craft team opened up a compartmentalized first floor by removing some walls, unnecessary millwork, and other wall treatments. Now, homeowners have a clear view into their living room, kitchen, and dining room, making it easier to visit with guests, keep an eye on the kids, and spend time together as a family. Additionally, the updated, classic look makes the house feel much more like home.

Lower Gwynedd First Floor Transformation

Modern & open with classic style

Happy Kitchen, Happy Home

An isolated, cluttered kitchen can bring even the most passionate home chef down. Luckily for these homeowners, we dramatically improved their heart-of-the-home with an expansive, storage-filled island, new ceiling-height cabinets, and a more open space so they can visit with each other and their guests while cooking. As a bonus, the beautiful, thick countertop and elegant, angled range hood add visual interest and unique character.

Design Trends Workstation Sinks

Our featured project's kitchen includes a workstation sink — a rising trend in 2023 that made several appearances at this year's Kitchen and Bath Industry Show. Workstation sinks have deep basins with modular pieces like cutting boards, drying racks, and colanders that fit neatly into the sink without taking up any counter space. This innovative concept is especially useful in small kitchens where workspace is limited.

NEWS & EVENTS

KBIS 2023

The annual Kitchen and Bath Industry Show is always an exciting event in the remodeling world, and this year's show did not disappoint. From spa-like wellness features in the bathroom to indoor-outdoor kitchen surfaces and even laundry room innovations, we're looking forward to integrating these features into our next projects.
